

Every scholar can become more prolific.
What are you waiting for?

Publish & Flourish

Quadruple your productivity in just 15-30 minutes a day

The myth persists that prolific scholars are born not made, but research suggests otherwise. Much is known about the steps you can take to become prolific:

- Write daily for 15-30 minutes
- Organize around key sentences
- Solicit the right feedback from the right colleagues
- Make effective use of feedback

What participants say:

“I tried these steps on a paper I had been trying to put together for five years. Four weeks later the paper is out for review.”

“Internalizing these steps has caused my productivity to quadruple.”

Tara Gray serves as an associate professor of criminal justice and director of the Teaching Academy at New Mexico State University. She has used these steps to publish three books, including Publish and Flourish: Become a Prolific Scholar. She has presented workshops to more than 3,000 scholars in twenty states, in Guatemala, Mexico, and Thailand. As a workshop presenter, Dr. Gray is "spirited, informative and entertaining—she's anything but gray!"

Wednesday, August 26, 2009
Mansfield University (North Manser Dining Hall)
2 times are available: 8:30-11:30 and 1-3:30

Reservations are required at: jkagle@mansfield.edu or amcevoy@mansfield.edu

Sponsors include:

Mansfield University's Center for the Advancement of Teaching and Learning (<http://www.mansfield.edu/CATL/>) and

Text and Academic Authors, (www.TAAonline.net)