

Jason Bronner Lock Haven

---

Artist Statement

I've been asked to write a statement about my three paintings in this exhibition. These pictures aren't a body of work, they are just a hint into some of what runs through my head. It has become difficult for me to make art that does not at the least reflect my awareness of the state of the world. At present, it is challenging for me to consider more esoteric issues in art, so here are a few works that give some hints into how I am processing what I know, and what I learn. The state of the world seems bleaker now than at any point in my lifetime. These paintings are part of how I try to process that. They are about issues that are important and simultaneously issues that don't really matter.