Artist Statement

The name of my work is “Life in the Hands of Death”. This is pen ink on paper, we were tasked with the challenge of only using one pen to create a whole work and we had to use the pen until it ran out of ink. The inspiration behind my work was religious themes and how people always picture death as this harsh being who comes and steals souls. In my work, I have used death as something of a human, who has been praying out to whatever higher power exists. The higher power here being life who has just bestowed upon death the gift of life.

About Art Class with Ms. Olson

I have benefited from my art classes with my teacher because I have learned new skills and started to perfect others as well. We have worked with many different mediums in all of the different classes I've been taking. These classes have given me the opportunity to experiment with different mediums that I wouldn't have on my own as well as teaching more techniques and styles of art that I have never heard of or experimented with.
