Commentary- "Why I Love Art"

For the past several years, I have taken art classes, and they have made a significant impact on my life. I have benefitted from my art classes by learning how to think outside of the box and how doing that makes me think critically. Additionally, the benefit of art allows me to use expression in my pieces, and to use more flow. Likewise, I benefit from art by using strategic thinking to have the ability to use my better judgment. Most importantly, my teacher has taught me a wide variety of things that allow my art to have the best show.

I benefit from my art classes by experimenting with different media and styles. For example, the resources are right at my fingertips when I need them for any project I am working on. My teacher allows me to succeed in my artistry because of his immense skill of critique and judgment. Art allows me to have a broader perspective on creativity, and how to perceive this world with that ability. Finally, I would not be where I am today without my art classes because they have taught me all I needed to know about how to think and act in my creativity.

Artist Statement

My pieces often include vibrant colors and in honor of Freddie Mercury, I wanted to bring him back to life with the color palette I used. Likewise, the oil pastels and colors made it a satisfying process to create this artwork.
