

Grant Terwilliger, Grasshopper

Corning Painted Post High School. Corning, NY.

Artist Statement

I benefited from the art class that I took under my teacher Mrs. Wolf-King because she taught me how to do printmaking and different types of it which was kind of interesting as well as fun. Another thing she taught me was how to make a clay tile. I enjoyed it and it was interesting to see what color it came out when it got out of the kiln. Finally, she taught me how to do drawings with different textures involved and all these things that I've learned in this class have caused me to be a better artist and have brought me to where I am now.

I called my piece "What you imagine" because when my family looked at it they all saw something different in it so it's up to the viewer to decide what it is. When I was making my piece, I decided it would be stellar if I made it symmetrical and at first I wanted to make a sun so I made like rays of sun that's why the outside was yellow. I also decided to make dots that gradually get smaller and originally the dots were supposed to be blue to signify the ocean but they turned out looking black.