

Title IX and Sexual Misconduct Resources

You Have Rights

What are your options if you are a complainant of sexual misconduct?

If you are a complainant of sexual misconduct, you have the right to decide whether to make:

- A report to the Title IX Coordinator;
- A criminal report with the Campus Police or external police agency;
- A report with the University's Chief Conduct Officer (when the parties are students of the university);
- A sexual discrimination report with the Social Equity Officer;
- A report with a request for privacy and no further action; and/or
- No report at all

When a complainant of sexual misconduct reports to a Mansfield University employee about an incident of sexual misconduct, the University employee is mandated to report the incident to the Title IX Coordinator who will take immediate action in response to what occurred.

Steps Once Reported

If the complainant decides to report the incident, the University will take immediate steps to ensure the complainant's safety:

- Upon notification of an incident, the Title IX Coordinator promptly reviews the reported incident.
- Protective interim measures will be put in place, if needed (see protective measures).
- The complainant, respondent, and witnesses are requested to meet with the Title IX Office.
- The Title IX Office may complete a report. At the conclusion of the investigative report if one is completed, the Title IX Office may refer the case to the Student Conduct Office.
- The Complainant and Respondent will both have a student conduct pre-hearing conference, have the opportunity to present witnesses and evidence, have the right to one advisor, have the right to request accommodations at the hearing, receive notice of the steps in the process, and have the same appeal rights.
- The judicial hearing decides if there was preponderance of evidence (more likely than not) to make a decision of a violation of the Student Code of Conduct.
- Both parties are informed of the decision of the judicial board.
- After being informed of the outcome, an appeal can be made by both parties.

Protective Measures

Possible protective interim measures to ensure a complainant's protection:

- Access to counseling services
- Alternative course completion options.
- "No contact" order
- Change work schedules or job assignments
- Change class sections
- Course withdrawal without penalty
- Change campus housing location
- Voluntary leave of absence
- Provide escort/transportation services
- Any other appropriate remedy that can be tailored to the involved individual
